STEAL HORSE DURING NIGHT

J. M. Ash, Living East of Arlington Awakes This Morning to Find Property Taken.

TRACKS THIEVES ALONG ROAD

Stole Valuable Mare, Good Buggy and New Set of Harness—Coming This Way.

Going to the barn early this morning, J. M. Ash, living between Arlington and Gwynneville, discovered that a valuable mare, buggy and harness had been stolen sometime during the night. Instituting a search, he finally located the place in the barnyard where the thieves had hitched the animal and was unable to track the vehicle up into the road. He was able to follow the course of the robbers as the horse's feet were caked with straw and he could find the path by the pieces of straw from her foot. He followed the track of the mare as far as the Meadow Brook school house a short distance west of Arlington and then gave it up as the horse was shoeless and he was unable to distinguish her tracks further.

Returning home he called City Marshal Jesse Harlow about six o'clock this morning concerning the theft. The marshal called Connersville to notify the police but was not able to get through on the phone until this afternoon. Mr. Ash came to this city this morning, giving the police a description of the stolen property and further particulars. He said he believed the horse and buggy was taken about one o'clock this morning. He is uncertain as to which direction the thieves took at Arlington as they might have turned in either of three directions.

Mr. Ash said that the mare was the most valuable horse which he owned and one which he prized very highly. He also said that the robbers selected the best set of harness which he had, a new set which he had just fitted on the mare the day before. The buggy was an old vehicle but a good one, according to Mr. Ash.

The owner described the lost mare as being bay in color, about fifteen hands high, weighing about eleven hundred pounds and having few if any distinguishing marks. He said that the buggy needed painting but that the harness was new.

VOTE SWOPPING COMMON TODAY

General Opinion That Many Morris Votes Were Exchanged For Sparks Votes.

RUSHVILLE FOR RUSHVILLE

Vote swooping among Democrats and Republicans was very common today according to gossip on the streets. It is said that many Republicans, there were, who traded their votes for a Democratic vote. It is the general belief that the vote swooping was more general than any other election which was ever held here. Morris votes were traded for Sparks votes and vice versa. Rushville seemed to be more for its own people today than ever before.

The candy bill of the country is something over $500,000,000; the school bill is about $450,000,000.

IS RELEASED FROM JAIL

Henry Kiplinger, Arrested Here, is Given Freedom.

Henry Kiplinger who has been in jail for some time after being arrested on a grand jury indictment charging him with making a false affidavit was released on his own recognizance Monday morning, says the New Castle Times. Kiplinger did some painting and made affidavit that all bills had been paid, it is alleged, but later bills appeared. He was arrested at Rushville.

JUDGE SPARKS IS CAMPAIGN ISSUE

His Name on Most Every Voters Lip And General Belief is He Will Be Elected.

ASSURING WORD FROM SHELBY

Judge Sparks seemed to be the issue of the campaign here. His name is mentioned on the streets more than any other candidate and the prevailing opinion is that he will be elected even though Democrats were flaunting money today that he would be defeated by a good round majority. Local Democrats are anxious to see Douglas Morris elected judge of the supreme court in the second district and local Republicans are anxious to see Judge Sparks re-elected. The result was that Democrats voted for Sparks with the promise that Republicans would vote for Morris. It is believed that the county will roll up big pluralities for both candidates. Word from Carthage this morning stated that the vote there on Sparks was about evenly divided many Republicans scratching and many Democrats voting for him. A telephone message from Shelbyville at noon assured local party workers that Judge Sparks would carry the county.

FAIL TO GET FORTY FOREIGNER'S VOTE

Henry County Democrats Lose in Attempt to Naturalize Gang Working in Knightstown.

CASE IS TAKEN INTO COURT

Henry county Democratic leaders yesterday made an effort to naturalize, so they could vote today about forty foreigners, who are engaged in Pennsylvania railroad work at Knightstown. When application was made to County Clerk Burgess for naturalization blanks the leaders were informed that the supply had been exhausted. Blanks were prepared after a form provided by the Federal government and proffered to Clerk Burgess but he refused them on the ground that they were not regulation government blanks. Mandamus proceeding were at once brought in the Circuit Court against the county clerk who demanded time to prepare a defense. Judge Jackson set the hearing for this morning at 9 o'clock.

SCRATCHING WAS COMMON TODAY

Predicted That Very Few Straight Tickets Were Voted at General Election in Rushville.

ORDER AT POLLS IS PERFECT

Believed That Vote Was Heaviest in Years For an "Off-Year" Voters Out Early.

Scratching was the principal occupation of the voters of Rushville today according to the reports from all of the voting places in the precincts all over the city this afternoon. The officers at the voting places estimated that there was more scratching today than has been done in many years. Old pioneers of the county who have been interested in politics all their life declare that the scratching was more prevalent today than ever before. The scratching indicates that voters are not staying strictly to the party line but rather are voting for the man, which may mean that men of all parties will be found victorious tonight when the votes are counted.

Even though there was much non-partisan voting, it is predicted that a very heavy vote was registered in Rushville today. Many elements combined to make the vote larger, than is generally the case in an "off-year," when no president is to be elected. It is generally conceded that the interest has been more intense this year than ever before at an election of this sort. This, it is claimed, is largely responsible for the extremely heavy vote which was cast.

Local politicians say that the very favorable weather is also partly the reason for the big vote being cast here. Even though both parties always furnish conveyances for the voters, if the day is bad there is always a class of voters who never venture out to the polls. It is believed that the very fine day brought many voters out that would not otherwise have come.

The earliness which the vote was cast was a very unexpected and pleasing feature of today's election. Most of the vote was in by noon to today except in the factory districts where the voters all east their votes during the noon hour and after dinner. In many of the precincts about three-fourths of the vote was in by ten o'clock this morning. The vote early slogan was carried out with great precision.

The day passed off without any unpleasant feelings. There was no noticeable drunness and no trouble at any of the voting places. Both political parties had many carriages running all day to get voters to the polls who were dilatory and those who were unable to walk to the voting places.

At three o'clock this afternoon in the first precinct where 210 votes were polled, 184 had been voted; second, 178 polled, 163 voted; third, 217 polled, 177 voted; fourth, three-fourths of the vote in; fifth, over three fourths of the vote in; sixth, 218 polled, 170 voted; seventh, over three-fourths of the vote in; eighth, 200 polled, 180 voted; ninth, 217 polled, 196 voted; tenth, 140 polled, 100 voted.

ELECTION IS A HOME COMING

Prodigals From All Over the Land Return Home to Vote and Visit.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE HERE

Many Under-Age Take Advantage of the Day to be Guests at Home of Boyhood.

Election day, as it rolls around once every two years, always has a double meaning to most former Rushville boys and men. They not only have the opportunity to take advantage of their rights as American citizens, but they have a much more pleasant opportunity—that of visiting home folks and spending a pleasant day in the home of their boyhood. Many were the family dinners, fireside talks, reminiscent gatherings and good-fellowship meetings all over the city today—all because it was election day.

Sons of gray-haired parents were home today from far distant points all over the United States to visit, perhaps to see them for the last time. It is in some cases the only opportunity which the prodigal ever has of getting back to homeland. For that reason there is a pathetically interesting feature to the day which is not generally considered.

The city was overrun today by an influx of college students from all over the State, some of whom were here to vote. All of the under-age students took advantage of the day and came for a visit with homefolks. Most all of the colleges of the State dis missed on account of the general election.

Among those who came to vote and for a visit are: Cecil Clark, Louis Mauzy, Herman Smelser, students in Indiana University; Clarence Hiner, Bloomington; Leslie Eubank of Omaha, Neb.; Francis Moor, student in DePauw University, Greencastle; Charles Wolfe, Washington, D. C.; Walter Norris and Leon McDaniel, students in Purdue University, Lafayette; John McNamara and Sidney Baker of New Castle; Roscoe Morgan of Anderson; Basil Seward and George Priest of Richmond; Myron Green, Clifford S. Lee, Harry Lyons, Clyde Early, Hale Pearsey, Leon Maxey, and Homer Gregg of Indianapolis; Allan Blackledge and Harter Bebout, students in Butler College at Irvington; Ralph Harrold of Shelbyville; Will Caldwell of Decatur, Ill.; Dr. E. F. Van Osdel of Warsaw; Will Ratliff of Cincinnati, O.; Warne Carmichael of Muncie; Jesse Pugh who is now on the Lyceum platform; Leroy Carr a student on Wabash College at Crawfordsville; Oberin Reagle of Piqua, Ohio; Walter Williams of Indianapolis; Ephriam Ball of Plymouth, Ind.; Omer Trussler of Wells-ville, New York; Wiley Havens of Anderson.

FALLS AND BOTH LEGS ARE BROKEN

Jabez Apple, Prominent Rush County Farmer, Hurt in Knightstown When Horses Frighten.

SLIPPED UNDER THE WAGON

Jabez Apple, a prominent farmer of Rush county, sustained fractures of both legs yesterday by being thrown under a wagon loaded with wheat. He was waiting for the wheat to be weighed, at the Wilkinson elevator, near the Pennsylvania Railroad, in Knightstown, when his horses became frightened at a passing train. In his effort to get hold of the lines he slipped under the wagon and the rear wheel caught both legs just above the ankles.

REV. CLARK'S DOG CREATES A PANIC

Valuable Canine, Belonging to Former Pastor, Frightens Whole Household in Community.

BELIEVE DOG WAS POISONED

The home of Carl C. Smith, on Eastern avenue, was the scene of much well-founded excitement Sunday, says the Connersville News. A fine bird dog belonging to Rev. W. H. Clark, and which has been a favorite with all the members of Mr. Smith's family came to their home for a call about nine o'clock. It was let in at the door by Marion Smith, and the lad at once began playing with the handsome brute, but he noticed something unusual in its actions. Soon afterwards Mrs. Smith entered the room. She extended her hand to give the canine a morsel of meat, but instead of receiving it he snapped savagely at her hand lacerating the fore finger painfully.

While Mrs. Smith was recovering from the shock of this unexpected attack she heard screams from up stairs, where Madam McFerrin, of the Shera & McIntosh company, has rooms. The dog had gone up the stairway, and when near her room had been seized with a frightful fit. Mrs. Smith hurried upstairs in time to see it expire.

No one but Mrs. Smith was bitten by the dog, and she had the torn finger cauterized almost immediately. The animal is believed to have been poisoned.

SAYS BEVERIDGE IS TREACHEROUS

Prominent Politician of Fifth District Gives Scathing Denunciation of Senator in Interview.

IS FALSE TO PARTY COLORS

Says Beveridge Declared Defeat of Watson Would Give Him Satisfaction Two Years Ago.

The effort of Albert J. Beveridge, who will no doubt be elected United States senator, if the next Indiana house of Representatives is Republican, to defeat James E. Watson of this city, when he was a candidate for Governor of the State two years ago are best set forth in an interview by Nicholas Filbeck of Terre Haute, one of the Republican leaders in the fifth congressional district. Filbeck's story unfolds the treachery of Beveridge in the most surprising manner. He declares that the senior senator is false to his party colors, in a ranking denunciation, and says that he has worked only to gain his own ends and build up a political machine in the State that can not be broken down. The Terre Haute man also sheds some light on the political upheaval that retired James A. Hemenway from the senate. The article in part is as follows from the Terre Haute Tribune, an independent paper:

Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Republican candidate for re-election, declared in Terre Haute on the night of September 29, 1908, that it would give him satisfaction if James E. Watson, Republican candidate for governor, and his supporters, particularly Senator James E. Hemenway and Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks, were repudiated in the campaign then going on.

This statement in substance, was made in room No. 124 in the Filbeck hotel, and was addressed to Nicholas Filbeck, one of the leaders of the Republican party in the Fifth congressional district.

In an interview with a reporter for the Tribune last Saturday night at the Filbeck hotel, Mr. Filbeck related the circumstances surrounding the utterance of Senator Beveridge.

"I was in Beveridge's room, No. 124, after he had made a speech in Terre Haute on the night of September 29, at the Young's garden air-dome. He asked me how the Republicans felt in regard to the State campaign then going on. I told him that there was considerable soreness on account of the way the Republicans had treated the State issues, particularly the county option question. I told him that the Republicans would have a hard fight to carry Vigo county and that there was grave apprehension regarding the election of the State ticket."

"Good," exclaimed Senator Beveridge, according to Mr. Filbeck. "I don't care. I am against that Indianapolis ring. I don't care if they are defeated."

The leaders of the so-called Indianapolis ring were Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, Senator James A. Hemenway and James E. Watson, then Republican candidate for governor.

Asked as to whether Senator Beveridge had made the statement jocularly or whether he meant it, Mr. Filbeck said that the senator made the statement in all seriousness and that there was none of the jocular in his tone of voice.

"I was in Senator Beveridge's room at the time of the statement," said Mr. Filbeck. "The senator had not retired, but was drinking scotch high balls, which he had ordered with a lavish hand after he came to the

at this time just how general the damage will be.

It is noticeable, according to the reports, that all the fields where the fly has appeared were sown before September 27th. This was given especial attention this year on account of the bulletin published by Purdue University which advised all the farmers to defer wheat sowing until after that day. The bulletin which was issued by the Experiment Station warned against the fly and stated that less trouble would be experienced if the wheat was sown late.

Where the advice of the Experiment Station was followed the wheat has not been injured by the fly thus far, but as it is not so far advanced as that sown earlier in the fall, it may be damaged. The farmers believe that the wheat which was sown late will not be injured by the fly, if there is a period of cold weather soon. The fly appears when the weather continues warm for several weeks. Very little damage has been done by the fly during the past few years, and the wheat has been a very profitable crop.

A large amount of the wheat was washed out during the last high water, but many of the farmers who suffered from this flood will resow their fields.

A store can afford to handle the best goods at the lowest prices that does the most business.

You can not limit a store by its size or location for the amount of business it will do in a year

The store which can afford to serve customers to the best advantage is the one that can turn over the goods more frequently and sell the most goods in a year.

The goods would remain on the shelves a long time if the merchant did not advertise continually and tell the people what he has for sale.

The goods become old before they are sold.

Therefore the store at which to trade is the store that advertises

This is true from the standpoint of variety and style, also from the standpoint of economy, for the merchant who advertises does a larger amount of business every year than the merchant who does not advertise and therefore can serve you to a better advantage.

The merchant who tells the public what he has for sale and why it is good is the one to trade with.

has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

GARY ELECTION FULL OF DANGER

Police and Sheriff's Forces Are At Daggers' Points.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IS FEARED

With the Polls Guarded by Two Armed and Hostile Camps, It Would Require Little to Start a Row of Serious Proportions—Feud Between Sheriff and Chief of Police the Ticking Point.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 8.—With the sheriff of Lake county, Thomas Grant, and his chief assistants, who were reinforced by a hundred or more husky deputies from the rural districts, Gary is being watched today as the citizens are going to the polls. However, there is danger in the fact that the police and the sheriff's forces are at daggers' points. Sheriff Grant is the Republican nominee for re-election, and Chief of Police Joseph Martin is the Democratic nominee for Grant's position. Mayor Knotts largely increased the police force. He has sworn in a number of negroes from the south side saloons, and one of these, Walter Davis, now under jail sentence for wife beating, was released from the city jail and appointed a patrolman.

Mike Yocovich, better known as "Dog Face Charley," a slugger who took part in last year's stirring election scenes, has been appointed a detective and is terrorizing the south end with his club. Were the police and sheriff in harmony there would not be much trouble, but the rivalry between the two has become intense. In addition to this the township constables have joined with the sheriff's forces, and the constables stand ready to swear in a large number of deputies.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Dread New Disease Claims Daughter of Indiana Supreme Court Judge.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 8.—Marie, the twenty-year-old daughter of Judge and Mrs. Quincy A. Myers, is dead after a week's illness of infantile paralysis. This is the fourth death from this disease in Logansport in two weeks. There are at present over twenty cases in the city, and physicians and parents are greatly alarmed. Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, was here several days ago and met with the Cass County Medical society for the purpose of discussing the disease. While here Dr. Hurty visited Miss Myers and concurred in the diagnosis that she was suffering from the disease. Miss Myers first complained a week ago Monday. The disease steadily crept over her body, the physicians being unable to save her. Her father is a judge of the Indiana supreme court.

Didn't Stop to Relieve Victim.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 8.—Charles Mathies, aged seven, was run down by an automobile and, although Able Moremonth of East Chicago, who was driving the machine, knew that he had struck the boy, he never stopped. Young Mathies was taken to the Mercy hospital, where it is stated that he is suffering from internal injuries and will, in all probability, die. When word of the accident reached the Gary police they overtook Moremonth in East Chicago.

Shot Wife and Himself.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 8.—George Fossler, a business man of this city, shot and fatally wounded his wife and killed himself. Fossler, who had been separated from his wife, called her to his room, and as she entered, began shooting. Aside from a note he left saying he died with a broken heart, no cause for the tragedy is known.

Deadly Quarrel Over Pool Game.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 8.—Challenged to a fight after a quarrel about a pool game, Edward Singleton, twenty-one years old, a brewery driver, went to the street with Jacob Fitzinger, of the same age. Fitzinger is said to have struck Singleton in the temple. Singleton dropped dead. Fitzinger surrendered to the police.

A FINE OUTLOOK

As the Ballots Fall Today Republican Success Seems Assured.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—With promise of good weather, assurance of lively interest and hope of the fullest possible expression of the popular will at the polls, political managers in Indiana moved forward with energy, today, to the final round of the most notable off-year campaign ever waged in Indiana. Republicans everywhere were confident and determined. Extraordinary interest has been shown in the Republican cause this year. This extraordinary interest has not been confined to men of the Republican party. Nor has the interest been bounded by state lines. Independents and Democrats have been drawn to take part in the Republican progressive movement led by Senator Beveridge. The uncertainty of the course to be taken by the independents has made the whole Beveridge campaign interesting, to say the least. Now that there is every reason to believe the independents have decided to line up with the Republican progressives and with Beveridge, the element of hazard is largely removed from the political situation.

While the betting men in Indianapolis,—those who sought to influence public sentiment,—offered odds against the election of a Republican legislature, up to Saturday night, they were driven to cover, even with a $5,000 bluff wager, early Saturday evening, and were able to come back with nothing better than even money from that time on. The great Beveridge rally Saturday night, occurring at the same time as the ridiculously small Kern meetings in darker Indianapolis, was an effective eye-opener for the Democrats and put new heart into Republicans. Never in the history of Indiana politics has there been such a spirited, thrilling and inspired meeting as that which listened to Senator Beveridge's last appeal Saturday night. Beveridge spoke with unusual fire, and his words were powerfully alight with truth. And at the same time the people were aroused to a splendid pitch of zeal and enthusiasm. The meeting swept the Democrats off their feet in Marion county and the Seventh district. As a result of all the combined forces of the times, it was freely estimated Monday that Marion county would vote Republican by more than 3,000, and that Linton A. Cox was in a fair way to be elected to congress over C. A. Korbly by 4,000.

It is known to politicians and workers of both parties that at least twenty Democratic precinct committeemen in Marion have deserted their posts in the campaign and are working for the Republican ticket. There are at least double that number of Democratic precinct workers who are in revolt against Taggartism and working for the Republican cause. It became known Monday that the Irish-Americans, especially the younger men among them and the substantial citizens of that element, are very strong, quietly, but effectively for Senator Beveridge. They like his intense Americanism, and they acknowledge the value of his services to them and to the country at large.

Much to the apparent surprise of some Democratic managers, it developed Monday that the most influential German-American citizens of Indianapolis were enlisted under the Republican banner with Beveridge. These men know what the tariff commission idea means. These men have seen the tariff commission idea at work in Germany, where it has taken the tariff out of business, and has rescued business from periodical tariff agitation by removing the problem from the hands of politicians. The German-American citizen believes thoroughly in the tariff commission plan, and in Indianapolis these citizens have been back of the tariff commission movement for three years. These solid business men regard the stability of business through tariff adjustment as much more important, in the large than any side issue the Democrats have been able to inject into the campaign.

John W. Kern Saturday night lost all chance of attracting any of the prohibition voters, either in Marion county or in the state. Mr. Kern spoke to a meeting of political heeled in a saloon on the southside, Indianapolis. His speech was short, but the luckless Kern will never hear the last of the bad break made the last night of his luckless campaign.

As a result of the Kern saloon meeting Saturday night a hurry call went out for meetings of prohibitionists all over Marion county. Sunday, and the workers of that party sent out word to get behind the Republican legislative ticket and make the votes count against the saloon influence. The same thing went on all over the state. John W. Kern has been attending night caucuses of Taggart men in Marion county, in company with Boss Taggart, and these meetings were reported. But it required the saloon meeting with Kern as orator to convince the people of the actual meaning of the Kern candidacy for office. Now that the air is cleared, the temperance people with one accord are earnestly opposing the influences which are behind Kern.

Wonderful Campaign.

The last big gun of the campaign has been fired and its "boom" is still echoing round the world. The frazzled orators have sought the tranquility of their homes for much needed rest and the offices at headquarters are closed except for routine business. Saturday ended the platform program and Monday and today will be devoted to hunt for scattered voters and to the preservation of the illogism created during the campaign and getting out a full vote.

This campaign will go into history, as one of the most remarkable in the annals of the country. Its issues are based principally on the proceedings of the last session of congress and it has been made spectacular by the schism in the Republican party growing out of the passage of the Aldrich-Payne tariff bill.

The campaign just closing has been one for American citizenship in that it has been educational and elevating in its influences. The people have listened attentively to the arguments of speakers and applauded enthusiastically the utterance of lofty and patriotic sentiments, and they have read the newspapers with more than usual care. They have seemed bent on getting at the meat of the questions discussed and of making themselves thoroughly acquainted with the merit of the arguments advanced. Perhaps more than usual too, they have listened to the speakers of the opposition with a view to forming a fair and correct judgment of the questions at issue. On the other hand they have had the opportunity of hearing some of the ablest men of the country here.

HUNTING SEASON COMES IN SOON

Local Nimrods Anticipate First Day of Sport November 10, When They Can go Out.

STATE GAME LAWS RESTRICT

Rabbits and Quail are Plentiful and Squirrels are Said to be Fat and Jucy.

Nimrods of Rushville and Rush county are eagerly looking forward to the open season which begins one week from tomorrow, November 10. Rabbits and quail are reported numerous and squirrels are also plentiful.

As the laws of Indiana now stand, there are three summer and fall hunting seasons. With July 1 squirrels may be shot. The open season on squirrels is from July 1 to Oct. 1. Then follows the open season on wild fowl, ducks, geese, etc. With November 10, rabbits and quail may be shot, the closed season on quail ending with the first of the year.

Rabbits are not protected excepting the law protecting the quail. The law specifies that from October 1 until November 10 it is illegal to shoot or attempt to shoot any kind of game excepting wild fowl. This includes rabbits.

Reports indicate that quail shooting in Rush county will not be up to standard. There are many rabbits, according to some reports, but birds did not do so well, and there will be fewer of them this year.

The time was when the flesh of the cottontail was not in favor with the Hoosier populace, but this is changing. Most people now seem to prefer rabbits to squirrels, although as a rule the rabbits require more in cooking.

The important thing to remember about rabbits is that they ought to be as carefully handled as any other meat. When a rabbit is shot it ought to be dressed immediately, except that the fur need not be stripped. This insures thorough bleeding and the meat looks whiter when cooked. If it is cold weather, it will be well to freeze the rabbit over night before cooking it.

If the rabbit is a young one, it may be fried slowly just as a young chicken is prepared. If it is an old one, it may be parboiled and then slowly fried. Potpies and stews made with this variety of game are excellent.

These facts about preparing rabbit meat for the table were secured from a woman who thinks she understands the cooking of them, and she insists that a young rabbit is as delicate a viand as the Hoosier hunting season will supply for the table.

If you wish beautiful, clear, white clothes, use Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

Propose Player Pianos For the Public Schools

The player piano is likely to become widely adopted as a means of promoting musical culture in public schools. The Cincinnati Times-Star publishes the following interesting statement from the superintendent of schools of that city and also from the head of the college of music:

Reports announcing the use in the schools of the self-playing piano, as well as of the phonograph, in developing a love for good music, have interested Cincinnati educators. Superintendent of Schools F. B. Dyer is heartily in favor of the use of these pianos to teach musical application and will make efforts to have them introduced in the new Cincinnati high schools.

"The use of the phonograph in the schools will probably prove helpful in teaching the child good music, but I am especially interested in the use of the piano, for which I can see a wide field," said Superintendent F. B. Dyer. "We already use these pianos in the Blind and Oral schools. However, I hope to install the latest type of automatic piano players in the two new high schools. There are some unusually fine instruments that reproduce classic music with much fidelity. These are already being used with success in other cities. I saw them in the New York College of Music, where they are used to make the student familiar with the music. They play more artistically than an amateur. I must confess I could not distinguish between the playing of one of these fine instruments and the performance of a pianist. More people will listen to music than will play it, and the instruments readily teach people proper musical appreciation. Perhaps phonographs could also be of service in this regard in the schools, but I am anxious to first secure the installation of the pianos."

"I am not only not opposed to either the phonograph or the automatic piano, but I can see much good in both of them for purposes of musical education," said A. J. Gantvoort of the College of Music. "They are wonderful teachers, especially for people who have no time to make a very thorough study of music. Of course, the automatic players can never equal the work of a good performer, but they do better than poor amateurs. I understand that Superintendent Dyer is planning to have these pianos placed in the new high schools. That seems to me to be a wise move. Outside of Janesville, Wis., I have heard of no schools making use of the phonograph, but probably there is a field for the phonograph, too. At Yale, Harvard and other institutions, the automatic pianos are used in classes of 'musical appreciation.' Selections are performed and the student does nothing but listen. He is taught to appreciate good music, without becoming a performer, just as people are taught to appreciate good painting without becoming artists. Then the students are tested by performing only a small part of a selection and having him state what the selection was. Some Eastern as well as Western high schools use the piano, and there is no reason why Cincinnati schools should not make use of this valuable instrument."

AMUSEMENTS

The Palace theater will have a complete change of program tonight.

The Star-Grand offers a Lubin drama tonight entitled "The Clown And the Minister." A story of stage life that is convincingly real. The hotel in a mining town was no place for a baby and the minister took the sick child and its parents into his own home. There the crisis of the disease came and the child slept in her father's arms. To rouse it meant the death of the child, yet the clown was urgently needed at the theater where the cowboys and miners were clamoring for his appearance and to gain time the minister takes the clowns place. Earl Robertson will sing "Take a Chance With Me."

The Vaudet will show an Imp film tonight which is claimed to be of extraordinary merit. "Bear Ye One Another's Burdens" is the title of the picture which will be shown. It is a strong dramatic story with one of the best plots imaginable. The interest is said to be excellent all through the picture, in which a story, intensely human, is depicted. The Imp film has its usual strong coterie of actors and actresses. A new illustrated song will be sung.

ARREST STRONG MAN

Franks, Who Was Here, "Breaks In" at Greenfield.

Saturday evening Nancy Cruce caused the arrest of F. B. Franks, the strong man who was playing at the Thistle theater, on a charge of assault and battery, says the Greensburg Republican. The case was dismissed however as it was shown that there was no intention to injure. When preparing for his free performance in front of the theater, the strong man it is said pushed the crowd back and the prosecuting witness claimed that she was pushed down.

CHAPTER II.

IT had been a forlorn hope at best, this attempt of his to escape Kellogg—Duncan acknowledged it when, his packing rudely finished, he started for the door, Robbins reluctantly surrendering the suit case after exhausting his repertoire of devices to delay the young man. But at that instant the elevator gate clashed in the outer corridor and Kellogg's key rattled in the lock, to an accompanying confusion of voices, all masculine and all very cheerful.

Duncan sighed and motioned Robbins away with his luggage. "No hope now," he told himself. "But—O Lord!" Incontinently there burst into the room four men—Jim Long, Larry Miller, another whom Duncan did not immediately recognize and Kellogg himself—bringing with them an atmosphere breezy with jubilation. Before he knew it Duncan was boisterously overwhelmed. He got his breath to find Kellogg pumping his hand.

"Nat," he was saying, "you're the only other man on earth I was wishing could be with me tonight! Now my happiness is complete. Gad, this is lucky!"

"You think so?" countered Duncan, forcing a smile. "Hello, you boys!" He gave a hand to Long and Miller. "How're you all?" He warmed to their friendly faces and unfeigned welcome. "My, but it's good to see you!" There was relief in the fact that Kellogg, after a single glance, forebore to question his return; he was to be counted upon for tact, was Kellogg. Now he strangled surprise by turning to the fourth member of the party.

"Nat," he said, "I want you to meet Mr. Bartlett. Mr. Bartlett, Mr. Duncan."

A wholesome smile dawned on Duncan's face as he encountered the blank blue stare of a young man whose very smooth and very bright red face was admirably set off by semi-evening dress. "Great Scott!" he cried, warmly pressing the lackadaisical hand that drifted into his. "Willy Bartlett—after all these years!"

A sudden animation replaced the vacuous stare of the blue eyes. "Duncan!" he stammered. "I say, this is ripping!"

"As bad as that?" Duncan essayed an accent almost English and nodded his appreciation of it, something which Bartlett missed completely.

He was very young—a very great deal younger, Duncan thought, than when they had been classmates, what time Duncan shared his rooms with Kellogg, very much younger and suffering exquisitely from oversophistication. His drawl barely escaped being inimitable. His air did not escape it. "Smitten with my old trouble," Duncan appraised him—"too much money. Heaven knows I hope he never recovers!"

As for Willy, he was momentarily more nearly human than he had seemed from the moment of his first appearance. "You know," he blurted, "this is simply extraordinary. I say, you chaps, Duncan and I haven't met for years, not since he graduated. We belong to the same frat, you know, and had a jolly time of it, if he was an upper class man. No side about him at all, y' know, absolutely none whatever. Whenever I had to go out on a spree I'd always get Nat to show me round."

"I was pretty good at that," Duncan admitted, a trifle ruefully.

But Willy rattled on heedless. "He knew more pretty gels, y' know. I say, old chap, d'you know as many now?" Duncan shook his head. "The list has shrunk. I'm a changed man, Willy."

"Ow, I say, you're chawlin." Willy argued incredulously. "I don't believe that, y' know, hardly. I say, you remember the night you showed me how to play faro bank?"

"I'll never forget it," Duncan told him gravely. "And I remember what a plug we thought my roommate was because he wouldn't come with us." He nodded significantly toward the amused Kellogg.

"Not him!" cried Willy, exultant. "Not really? Why, it can't be!" "Fact," Duncan assured him. "He was working his way through college, you see, whereas I was working my way through my allowance and then some. That's why you never met him. Willy, he worked and got the habit. We loafed with the same result. That's why he's useful and you're ornamental and I'm— He broke off in surprise. "Hello," he said as Robbins offered a tray to the three on which were slim stemmed glasses filled with a pale yellow effervescent liquid. "Why the blond waters of excitement, please?" he inquired, accepting a glass.

From across the room Larry Miller's voice sounded. "Are you ready, gentlemen? We'll drink to him first, and then he can drink to his royal little self. To the boy who's getting on in the world! To the junior member of L. J. Bartlett & Co."

Long applauded loudly. "Hear, hear!" and even Willy Bartlett chimed in with an unemotional, "Good work!" Mechanically Duncan downed the toast. Kellogg was the only man not drinking it, and from that the meaning was easily to be inferred. With a stride Duncan caught his hand and crushed it in his own.

"Harry," he said a little huskily. "I can't tell you how glad I am. It's the best news I've had in years."

Kellogg's responsive pressure was answer enough. "It makes it doubly worth while to win out and have you all so glad," he said.

"So you've taken him into the firm, eh?" Duncan inquired of Bartlett.

The blue eyes widened stonily. "The governor has. I'm not in the business, y' know. Never had the slightest turn for it, what?" Willy set aside his glass. "I say, I must be moving. No, I can't stop. Kellogg, really, I was dressin' at the club and Larry told me about it, so I just dropped round to tell you how jolly glad I am."

"Your father hadn't told you, then?"

"Who, the governor?" Willy looked unutterably bored. "Why, he gave up tryin' to talk business with me long ago. I can't get interested in it, 'pon my word. Of course I knew he thought the deuce and all of you, but I hadn't an idea they were goin' to take you into the firm. What?"

Long and Miller interrupted, proposing adieus which Kellogg vainly contended.

"Why, you're only just here"—he expostulated.

"Cawn't help it, old chap," Willy assured him earnestly. "I must go, anyway. I've a dinner engagement."

"You'll be late, won't you?"

"Doesn't matter in the least. I'm always late. Night, Kellogg. Congratulations again."

"We just dropped round to take off our hats to you," Long continued, pumping Kellogg's hand.

"And tell you what a good fellow we think you are," added Miller, following suit.

"You don't know how good you make me feel," Kellogg told them.

Under cover of this diversion Duncan was making one last effort to slip away, but before he could gather together his impedimenta and get to the door Willy Bartlett intercepted him.

"I say, Duncan—"

"Oh, rats!" said Duncan beneath his breath. He paused ungraciously enough.

"We've got to see a bit of one another, now we've met again, y' know. Wish you'd look me up. Half Moon club 'll get me most any time. We'll have to arrange to make a regular old fashioned night of it, just for memory's sake."

Duncan nodded, edging past him. "I've memories enough," he said.

"Right-oh! Any reason at all, y' know, just so we have the night?"

"Good enough," assented Duncan vaguely. He suffered his hand to be wrung with warmth. "I'll not forget. Good night." Then he pulled up and groaned, for Willy's insistence had frustrated his design. Kellogg had suddenly become alive to his attitude and hailed him over the heads of Long and Miller.

"Nat, I say! Where the devil are you going?"

"Over to the hotel," said Duncan.

"The deuce you are! What hotel?"

"The one I'm stopping at."

"Not on your life. You're not going just yet. I haven't had half a chance to talk to you. Robbins, take Mr. Duncan's things."

Duncan, set upon by Robbins, who had been hovering round for just that purpose, lifted his shoulders in resignation, turning back into the room as Miller and Long said good night to him and left at Bartlett's heels, and smiled awry in semi-humorous deprecation of the way in which he let Kellogg outmaneuver him. When it came to that it was hard to refuse Kellogg anything; he had that way with him, especially if one liked him. And how could any one help liking him?

Kellogg had him now, holding him fast by either shoulder, at arm's length, and shaking a reproving head at his friend. "You big duffer!" he said. "Did you think for a minute I'd let you throw me down like that? Have you dined?"

At this suggestion Duncan stiffened and fell back. "No, but—"

Kellogg swept the ground from under his feet. "Robbins," he told the man, "order in dinner for two from the club, and tell 'em to hurry it up."

"Yes, sir," said Robbins, and flew to obey before Duncan could get a chance to countermand his part in the order.

"And now," continued Kellogg, "we've got the whole evening before us in which to chin. Sit down." He led Duncan to an armchair and gently but firmly plumped him into its capacious depths. "We'll have a snug little dinner here and what do you say to taking in a show afterward?"

"I say no."

"You darsent, my boy. This is the night we celebrate. I'm feeling pretty good tonight."

"You ought to, Harry." Duncan struggled to rouse himself to share in the spirit of gratulation with which Kellogg was bubbling. "I'm mighty glad, old man. It's a great step up for you."

"It's all of that. You could have knocked me over with a feather when Bartlett sprang it on me this morning. Of course, I was expecting something, a boost in salary, or something like that. Bartlett knew that other houses in the street had made me offers. I've been pretty lucky of late and pulled off one or two rather big deals, but a partnership with L. J. Bartlett—Think of it, Nat!"

"I'm thinking of it, and it's great." "I'll keep me mighty busy," Kellogg blundered blindly on. "It means a lot of extra work, but you know I like to work."

"That's right, you do," agreed Duncan cheerily. "It's queer to me. It must be a great thing to like to work."

"You bet it's a great thing. Why, I couldn't exist if I couldn't work. You remember that time I laid off for a month in the country for my health's sake? I'll never forget it—hanging round all the time with my hands empty—every one else with something to do. I wouldn't go through with it again for a fortune. Never felt so useless and in the way."

"But," interrupted Duncan, knitting his brows as he grappled with this problem, "you were independent, weren't you? You had money—could pay your board?"

"Of course. Nevertheless I felt in the way."

"That's funny."

"It's straight."

"I know it is. It wouldn't be you if you didn't love work. It wouldn't be me if I did. Look here, Harry. Suppose you didn't have any money and couldn't pay your board and had nothing to do. How'd you feel in that case?"

"I don't know. Anyhow that's rot!"

"No, it isn't rot. I'm trying to make you understand how I feel when—when it's that way with me, as it generally is." He raised one hand and let it fall with a gesture of despondency so eloquent that it roused Kellogg out of his own preoccupation.

"Why, Nat?" he cried, genuinely sympathetic. "I've been so taken up with myself that I forgot. I hadn't looked for you till tomorrow."

"You knew, then?"

"I met Atwater at lunch today. He told me. Said he was sorry, but—"

"Yes, everybody is always sorry, but—"

Kellogg let his hand fall on Duncan's shoulder. "I'm sorry, too, old man."

But don't lose heart. I know it's pretty tough on a fellow."

"The toughest part of it is that you got the job for me, and I had to fall down."

"Don't think of that. It's not your fault!"

"You're the only man who believes that, Harry."

"Back up. I'll stumble across some better opening for you before long, and—"

"Stop right there. I'm through!"

"Don't talk that way, Nat. I'll get you in right somewhere."

"You're the best hearted man alive, Harry, but I'll see you blasted first."

"Wait." Kellogg demanded his attention. "Here's this man Burnham. You don't know him, but he's as keen as they make 'em. He's on the track of some wonderful scheme for making illuminating gas from crude oil. If it goes through, it's bound to work a revolution. He's down in Washington now—left this afternoon to look up the patents. Now, he needs me to get the ear of the Standard Oil people, and I'll get you in there."

IMPORTANT FIGURE

New Lord Mayor of London Has Interesting Job Ahead.

London, Nov. 8.—The date for the coronation of King George has been officially fixed for June 22. Sir Vezev Strong, who is to be inaugurated lord mayor of London tomorrow and will thus be a prominent figure in the coronation ceremony, has had a wide experience in municipal affairs, having served as sheriff of the city, member of the water board, alderman, etc., and master of the stationers' guild and the plumbers' guild. He is not a college bred man, but stands high as a business man and is largely engaged in the paper trade. The stationers' guild will celebrate its five-hundredth anniversary during his year of office, and as he is a past master of the guild, there will doubtless be great doings on the occasion. He will also have an important function to perform at the coronation of King George V. in June.

MANY RAILWAYS MAY BE TIED UP

Engineers and Managers Fail to Get Together.

WESTERN ROADS INVOLVED

After a Long Series of Conferences the Managers of the Roads West of Chicago and the Locomotive Engineers
Have Agreed to Disagree, and It Now Remains For the Engineers to Decide on the Question of Striking.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—A strike of railroad engineers which would tie up every railroad of importance west of Chicago threatens to be called in January, according to grand officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, for whom Grand Chief W. S. Stone of Cleveland, O., is spokesman. According to Mr. Stone and admitted by railroad representatives, conferences were begun between a committee from the engineers and the Western Managers' association Sept. 26 in this city, and nearly twenty-five sessions have been held since, the last being on Friday, when the last amicable arrangement of differences was declared to be unacceptable. The union committee was composed of fifty-two general chairmen from all over the country, with six grand officers, and the railroads, sixty-one in number, were represented by a conference committee of ten. W.
B. Scott, assistant director of maintenance and operation, was chairman of the committee. The engineers presented a demand for an increase of 15 per cent in salaries. The railroad men offered compromises, which were refused, and the word has been taken back to the local unions to vote whether or not to strike. The reply will be brought back by Dec. 15. The present working agreement in force can be terminated on thirty days' notice.
The brotherhood contains 60,000 members in the United States, Canada and Mexico, and 33,750 engineers will be affected on the lines in dispute.

THE WOMEN'S CHOICE

If Followed Out Today Will Put Berry in Governor's Chair.

Pittsburg, Nov. 8.—The representative women of Pittsburg yesterday afternoon, by their straw ballot, buried John K. Tener, Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, and buried him deep. By a ratio of 3 to 1 over Tener and 40 to 1 over Grim, the Democratic candidate, they declared W. H.
Berry of the Keystone party their choice for governor. It is estimated that more than 1,000 women cast their ballots, but there were many who bungled in the voting—voted for two different persons, insisted for voting for someone not down on the ballot, and so lost their votes. As it was, only 648 ballots were recorded on the sheets turned in by the two boards.
The vote was: Berry, Keystone, 402;
Tener, Republican, 139; Slayton, Socialist, 48; Larkin, Prohibition, 42;
Grim, Democratic, 10; Anton, Industrialist, 2. Total, 648.

The total of the vote is a bitter disappointment to the leaders in the vote movement, who confess themselves weak at estimating crowds.

NO BINDING EFFECT

Attaches to Contracts For Sunday Advertising, Says Court.

Kansas City, Nov. 8.—In a sweeping decision handed down by Judge J. M.
Johnson of the Kansas City court of appeals, newspaper contracts for advertising to be printed on Sundays are declared void of and of no binding effect.
The judge declared that such contracts were for work to be done in violation of the Sunday labor laws, and for that reason could not be enforced.
The decision came in the case of Publisher George W. Knapp & Co.,
owner of the St. Louis Republic, against Jeremiah Culbertson, president of the International Exploration company. Culbertson had a contract with the Republic for some advertising to be printed in Sunday issues of that paper. The advertising was published, as the paper agreed to do, on April 12 and 16, 1908. Culbertson avoided payment and suit was brought.

The Pennsylvania Motor company,

headquarters at Philadelphia, has closed its doors with a sudden thud that sent a shock of astonishment along the entire length of auto row.

HIRAM JOHNSON.

California's Republican Candidate For Governor.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—Hiram Johnson, insurgent Republican nominee for governor, has so great an advantage that Corbett's poolrooms have been giving 2 to 1 that Johnson wins, and even money that his plurality will be 20,000. The chairman of the Republican committee predicts Johnson will be elected by the largest vote ever given a governor in California. Theodore Bell's manager is equally confident and predicts a landslide for his Democratic nominee.

SAYS BELLE ELMORE IS AMONG THE LIVING

Interesting Claim Put Forth By a Philadelphia Lawyer.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Francis T.
Tobin, a lawyer and real estate broker of this city, who insists that he has turned up definite evidence that Belle Elmore, wife of Dr. Harvey Crippen, is alive in this country, claims to have inspired the action of the British home office in granting a temporary reprieve to Dr. Crippen, recently sentenced to be hanged for his wife's murder. Mr.
Tobin said that after having learned that Mrs. Crippen had been recognized in various western cities even after her husband had been put on trial for her murder, he communicated the facts in his possession to Crippen's attorneys in London. He presumes that the home office in granting an unlooked-for reprieve to the condemned man and extending the date of his execution from today until Nov.
23, acted upon the information which he supplied. Mr. Tobin refused definitely to state the nature of the discoveries, but said he had positive information that Belle Elmore was alive and living in seclusion.

Not Necessary to Interfere.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Relieved of the necessity of immediate action by the postponement of the hanging of Dr. H. H. Crippen for two weeks, the state department will probably suggest that any evidence that Belle Elmore Crippen, his supposed victim, is still alive, as is reported by Francis Tracy Tobin, a Philadelphia lawyer, be laid before the British consul at Philadelphia. The department does not consider it necessary to interfere.

Belle Elmore Located?

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—That a woman supposed to be Belle Elmore Crippen has been under surveillance for the last five days somewhere in the middle west was stated by the head of a private detective agency here. He gave the impression that she is being detained in a sanitarium.

BOTH SIDES ARE SURE OF RESULT

Indiana Election Going to Disappoint Someone.

THE TWO CHAIRMEN PREDICT

Head of the Republican Organization Makes the Most Confident Claim of the Success of His Side, While the Chairman of the Democratic Organization Is Equally Sure That His Side Will Take Everything.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—Both sides to the political contest which will come to a close with the closing of the polling places this evening, express supreme confidence in the result. The Republican state and county chairmen say the Republicans are going to win easily, and the Democratic state and county chairmen declare it is a cinch for the Democrats. And there you are.

"Our victory will be so great as to astonish the country," says Senator Beveridge. "Our majority on joint ballot in the legislature will be one of the largest that either party has had with one or two exceptions."

"I believe," says Mr. Kern, "that the Democratic state ticket will be elected and that the Democratic majority on joint ballot in the last legislature will be increased."

"With good promise of a heavy vote and a full and honest expression of the will of the people of Indiana, we are more than ever confident that the result of today's election will show Republicans triumphant all along the line, and the cause of progress greatly advanced," said Edwin M. Lee, Republican state chairman. "Indiana Republicans, I fully believe, will have twenty-four majority in the legislature on joint ballot, thus insuring the re-election of Senator Beveridge by a properly emphatic margin. We speak with deliberation and full information.
We base our prediction on facts as we find them after careful and thorough investigation and after weighing reports from many sources."

"The Republican state ticket will be elected by 25,000 or more. There is ample reason to believe that large gains will be made in the congressional contests. There is justification for the prediction that at least seven of Indiana's thirteen congressmen will be Republicans, and we would not be surprised to see eleven of the thirteen successful."

"All our reports have tended to show a Republican victory of landslide proportions."

Stokes Jackson, Democratic state chairman, said: "The Democratic organization of Indiana is as near perfect as an organization can be made.
The precinct committeemen all over Indiana have taken a very active interest in this campaign and have perfected a good, first-class organization, and I feel at this time that there is no doubt about the results. I feel certain that the Democrats will elect every congressman in Indiana; that the Democratic state ticket will be elected by a majority of anywhere from twenty-five thousand to forty or fifty thousand, and I believe, without any doubt,
after a careful investigation of reports received by me from every section of the state and almost every county, at a very late date, that the Democrats will have a majority in the legislature on joint ballot of not fewer than twenty-two to twenty-five. I want to congratulate the Democrats in Indiana at this time for the prospects of a great and glorious victory."

UP TO THE LAST

Colonel Roosevelt Kept Up His Broad-side For Stimson.

New York, Nov. 8.—Everything, including the shooting, was over for the colonel last night. He scamped about town taking his last shots at Mr. Dix and Tammany Hall. He thumped with increased vigor and said that he was satisfied that he had done his share for the Republicans. He's through for awhile. Roosevelt told his friends that he thought Stimson would be elected by not less than 25,000 plurality. He did not go into details, but expressed confidence. He told his audiences in Manhattan that his side would knock the other side over the ropes. He brought out nothing spectacular in the way of his assault on Dix that he has not brought out before. He merely repeated it. It was a long and busy day for the colonel.
He made two noonday speeches, ate dinner with the Hungarian Republican club at the Cafe Boulevard, and spoke five times last night, finishing up in Astoria, Long Island. He whirled through town at the head of a fleet of motor cars so fast that more than once he was in danger of slaying numerous and sundry Democratic voters.
But he did not.

Jersey Democrats Confident.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 8.—Democrats are more confident than Republicans as to today's election, and their views seem to be sustained by the independent newspapers of the state. They are depending for their success on the computers and the progressive vote in north New Jersey and also on the independent Democrats who have been voting the Republican ticket in recent years.

CHILDREN HOLD ELECTION

Pupils of Public Schools Voted For Their Candidates.

The pupils of the public schools held an election today. It was almost real too, for they used sample ballots which are duplicates of the State ballot. Young America was given its first idea of a real election and this was made more realistic because it was election day.

The children carried out the voting in a business like manner and it is a safe bet that when they are old enough to vote they won't have to be instructed.

City School Board Meets But Does Not Reach Any Agreement On Controversy.

NONE UNTIL BILL IS PAID

The regular meeting of the school board was held last night but no decision was reached in regard to the telephone controversy. The board has so far refused to pay the bill of fifteen dollars held over from last year and the telephone company has taken out the phones in all of the school buildings until the bill is paid. It is very likely that the school board could not get telephones installed now since the company is very rushed and is turning down orders for new phones every day.

The controversy all hinges on the argument over an amendment to a motion which was passed at a meeting of the stockholders of the telephone company. According to the phone company, John D. Megee made a motion that the city telephones be furnished free of charge and it was seconded. E. B. Thomas moved that an amendment be made, so that the school building phones would also be free of charge. The managers of the company contend that the motion for amendment fell by the wayside for the want of a second. E. B. Thomas contends that it was included in the original motion and was passed and that the city school phones should be furnished free of charge.

BREAKS HIS CLEAN ELECTION RECORD

James E. Watson, Who Has Always Voted First in His Precinct.

ESSAYED A PLUMBER'S ROLE.

James E. Watson, former congressman and candidate for governor two years ago, has always prided himself on being an early voter. He has a record for being a first voter in his precinct, number two, for the past several years. Two years ago when he was a candidate, he was out bright and early and was at the polls when they were opened ready for a vote. But this morning he was doomed to disappointment. Mr. Watson expected to vote early and first as usual. He arose at an early hour to find his house as cold as ice and instead of voting, the former congressman braved the cold of the cellar and "plumbered" on his furnace. He finally succeeded in fixing the furnace, but he did not vote until about noon, and has broken his heretofore clean record.

hotel. He was not drunk, however. I believe he can drink more scotch high balls than any man I ever saw."

Mr. Filbeck attributes Beveridge's desire to see James E. Watson defeated and a Republican legislature elected to his ambition to encompass the defeat of Senator James E. Hemenway in order that he might have a chance to secure all the Indiana patronage of the national government and thus build a stronger political machine for himself. Beveridge thought according to Mr. Filbeck's analysis that the retiring of Hemenway would put him in undisputed control of the federal offices in Indiana.

"Mr. Beveridge is campaigning the State declaring that he bows to no machine and that he is a non-partisan candidate," said Mr. Filbeck.

"I'll relate an incident which will throw some light on the methods he has pursued in seeking his re-election to the senate."

"Previous to the active opening of the campaign State Senator Higgins, of Vermillion, Fountain and Warren counties, asked Beveridge to allow him to appoint the postmaster at Clinto, which is the home of Mr. Higgins. Senator Beveridge's reply was: 'I can't see my way clear to appoint your man.'"

State Senator Higgins who is hold-over State legislator and will have a vote in the coming legislature which will elect a United States senator re-qualified to Senator Beveridge in substance as follows according to Mr. Filbeck:

"I can't see my way clear to vote for you for re-election as United States senator."

After this message was received by Senator Beveridge he replied to State Senator Higgins, in substance as follows according to Mr. Filbeck: "Your man will be appointed."

Further indications of the hostility of Senator Beveridge to James E. Watson, former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks and former United States Senator James E. Hemenway are revealed in his attitude toward the race of J. H. Holiday, of Brazil, for congress in 1906, according to Mr. Filbeck. When told that there was a chance that Mr. Holiday would be defeated, Senator Beveridge is alleged to have said in Terre Haute in the Filbeck hotel during the campaign of 1906:

"I don't care if Holiday is defeated. He belongs to the Fairbanks machine."

ROBBERS ENTER MACHINE SHOP

Intruders Broke Into Long & Case's Place, Last Night—Interior Found in Disorder.

POLICE HAVE NO CLUES

What appears to be an attempt at robbery, occurred last night, when the machine shop of Long & Case was entered. One of the windows was smashed and the intruders obtained an entrance in this manner. Tools and wrenches were scattered all about the interior and the place was in general disorder. On the outside, several gas-mantles were found strewn about on the ground. It is not known just at what time this took place for it was not discovered until this morning. Nothing of value was found missing and as yet the police have no clues.
